Sleeps Soundly Through Storm & Fire

Stephen Guthrie, (above) almost 10, slept through it all, but a fierce electrical storm and flash of lightning Thursday night, Sept. 10, struck a clothesline, then caused a fire which burned a trailer home and storage building at the rear of his home on Road 667 near Spout Spring. Mrs. Mary Stone, his mother, came home early from shift work at Hudgins Plating Co., Lynchburg, when she heard about the fire. Firemen awakened the boy from a sound sleep when they rushed from Concord to fight the blaze. Note that lightning stripped the clothesline of its plastic coating, and six trees were damaged in addition to the total loss of the storage buildings and contents. A television set and electric clock were burned out in the Stone's home, but no other damage to the home, itself, was reported.

SOME PEOPLE THINK ELECTRIC HEAT IS ONLY FOR THE RICH.
Except those who have it.
Rich in expectations, maybe. Rich in possessions, not necessarily.
People who choose electric heat have one thing in common. When they make an important purchase such as a first home, they look for value throughout.
They prefer electric heat because it's cleaner, safer, quieter, and more flexible than any other heating system. It's the only system that will be as up-to-date when they sell their house as it was when they bought.
If you're considering a new home, consider all of the advantages of electric heat. Ask yourself whether any other heating system offers more value for the money than flameless electric heat.
Talk to your contractor or builder who sells electrically heated homes.
He's an expert in real heating value.
And if people want to think you're rich—enjoy it!

do office work with factory work being the second largest group.

Fifty-nine students were in the college preparatory curriculum while in high school. Of that number fifty-seven planned to go on to four year, two year or nursing schools.

All in all, the Guidance Department was pleased with what the results of the survey indicated. When the student was asked to evaluate who had helped them most with deciding on their future plans, half of the students indicated that their guidance counselor had been most helpful in making their plans. Only the student's parents received more credit than counselors for helping students make up their minds.

The Appomattox County High School Guidance Department has two fulltime counselors this year; 10th and 12th Grade Counselor — Mrs. Harriet James, 9th and 11th Grade Counselor — Mrs. Pauline DePew. Mrs. Bolling C. Carter is 8th Grade Counselor and Director of Guidance.
